

“Ray McKinnon’s RANDY AND THE MOB is a funny valentine to small-town life down in Dixie. As Southern as butter beans, sweet as pecan pie, and yes, cool as an ice-chest full of watermelon. It’s subversive charm will win over even the most cynical.”

– Mary Kay Andrews, The New York Times bestselling author of SAVANNAH BLUES

“Brilliant! A sublime comedy. Deadpan without being rarefied.”

– Rodney Hill, INsite MAGAZINE

“Walton Goggins as a Zen-like spaceman of a Mafia fixer gets belly laughs out of nowhere with his atom brain line readings and his oddball non sequiturs and pre-tornado calm.”

– Jim Ridley, NASHVILLE SCENE

“Lisa Blount is hilariously deadpan in her portrayal of a clinically depressed wife. A funny, intelligent and humane movie.”

– Philip Martin,
ARKANSAS DEMOCRAT-GAZETTE

“Embrace your inner hillbilly and experience the healing magic of spontaneous guffawing courtesy of RANDY AND THE MOB.”

– Jill Conner Browne,
New York Times bestselling author of the SWEET POTATO QUEENS series

“The Coen brothers meet Jonathan Demme by way of SLING BLADE and MAYBERRY.”

– Michael Clark,
GWINNETT DAILY POST
